Greetings,

Are you looking for new ways to help support the organic farming community? Do you want to promote your products through sustainability? Then consider a donation of food or produce to the seven-state, 37th Annual Northeast Organic Farming Association 2011 Summer Conference. From August 12-14th, roughly 1,600 people will gather at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, to learn about and celebrate organic food, farming, gardening, cooking, food preservation and landscaping.

Many sponsors, exhibitors, and advertisers will join the celebration while marketing their products! Your brand and donated product will reach consumers from New York, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts and other states. Donated food is used throughout the conference and will be acknowledged in our program book.

The Northeast Organic Farming Association (NOFA) is the pioneer of education about organic and sustainable growing and gardening on the East Coast. From farmers to gardeners, landscapers to consumers, and business owners concerned with the environment, our health and our economy – NOFA touches hundreds of thousands of lives every day.

NOFA is a seasoned and dynamic organization with a long history, a 501-C3 non-profit with over 5,400 members, working in diverse ways for the development of organic agriculture and a sustainable future. Donations of food and produce to the auction will help defray costs, providing needed revenue to advocate for and educate about organic growing and sustainable living.

Ready to donate today? Then fill out our online form to get your product represented: Click here to submit a donation. Please don't hesitate to call 978-376-7092 or email me at mel.q.shaw@gmail.com if you need any further information regarding our event. Feel free to check out our website and read more about the conference at www.nofasummerconference.org.

Thank you very much for your consideration, your commitment to organic growing and eating and to the brighter future we all work to create. We hope to hear from you and help make arrangements for receiving your product.

Sincerely,
